Carers may be eligible for specific financial support payments from the Federal Government to assist with their living costs, providing they live in Australia and meet residence requirements. Carer Payment Carers who provide full-time care may be eligible for the fortnightly Carer Payment to help them meet their basic costs of living. This payment is available to carers of: someone with a disability (including a serious mental health condition) someone with a severe illness someone who is frail aged 2 to 4 children younger than 16 whose needs add up to the same as 1 child with severe needs 1 or 2 children younger than 16 and 1 adult whose needs total the same as 1 child with severe needs. Eligibility for the Carer Payment For a carer to qualify for the Carer Payment, they must: Meet an income and assets test Care for a person, or people, who have been assessed as meeting a minimum disability score assessed through the Adult Disability Assessment Tool (ADAT) or a Carer Needs Assessment (for a child under the age of 16) - a health professional currently treating the person must complete these forms. Not be employed, in education or volunteering for more than 25 hours a week Carer Allowance The Carer Allowance is a fortnightly payment to carers of someone with a severe disability or illness or who is frail aged to assist with the additional costs of caring on top of their usual costs of daily living. Eligibility for the Carer Allowance Everyone on the Carer Payment will automatically receive the Carer Allowance. However, the Carer Allowance is also available to carers who: Provide daily care Care for someone who reaches an eligible score on the Adult Disability Assessment Tool (ADAT) or a Carer Needs Assessment - see above Has a household income of under $250,000 per year. There are no employment, education or volunteering restrictions on the Carer Allowance. You may get a Carer Allowance for each person you care for providing they meet the disability requirements and you meet the daily care requirements. Carer Supplement The Carer Supplement is an annual payment of $600 which is attached to each Carer Allowance. The Supplement is paid in July each year. Other payments There are a range of other payments which carers can get under some circumstances. They cover such things as special payments to carers of children with disability, payments to assist with the costs of raising children, incontinence aids and the running of medical equipment and medically required temperature control. An income support payment if you give constant care to someone who has a severe disability, illness, or an adult who is frail and old. An income support payment if you give constant care to someone who has a severe disability, illness, or an adult who is frail and old. Eligibility You are caring for 1 or more people with care needs which score high enough on the Adult Disability Assessment Tool (ADAT) or Disability Care Load Assessment (Child) (DCLA) They will have these needs for at least 6 months or the rest of their life Under the pension income and assets test limits You and the person receiving care must both be residing in Australia The Carer Payment can provide you with income support if you are unable to work because of the demands of your caring role. To be eligible for the Carer Payment: You need to provide full time care over an extended period of time for a person with a disability or chronic illness, mental illness, or who is frail aged. You do not have to live with the person you care for, but you need to live within a reasonable distance and provide 'constant' care, usually interpreted as equivalent to a full day's work. Both you and the person you care must be Australian residents, currently living in Australia. You, your employed spouse or partner (if you have one) and the person you care for must all meet the income and assets test for the payment. If you earn income or own property, savings or investments above a particular amount (the 'threshold'), you may not be eligible. You must not spend more than 25 hours a week away from caring (including travel) to do: paid work volunteer work study training Centrelink can be flexible about some of the eligibility rules particularly if the person you care for has high care needs or if you care for more than one person. Contact them to discuss your individual situation. Further information on eligibility Payment rates Total maximum payment rates are $907 for single people and $1368 for couples per fortnight.
